Description of VideoAnt

What is it?

An online video annotation tool that allows us to add notes and comments to videos hosted on the Internet

Share the annotated videos with others so they can add their own content or comments

It is a great tool to stimulate discussions and ideas around a video

From whom?

It is a free service developed by the College of Education and Human Development at the University of Minnesota

Teachers say about VideoAnt (1/3)

VideoAnt is probably the most effective tool I could use for self-reflection on a presentation of some sort. It's also important for peer reflections on a classmate's presentation.

- Jill Trites, Senior Teaching Specialist, Family Social Science

Teachers say about VideoAnt (2/3)

VideoAnt is the best tool for the teaching of public speaking, the skill that you want to develop in students.

- Tania Mitchel, Assistant Professor, Organizational Leadership, Policy, and Development

Teachers say about VideoAnt (3/3)

One aspect of VideoAnt that I like as an instructor is that it's kind of a discussion among the whole group of students, especially during or after self-assessment

- Heather Dorsey, Senior Teaching Specialist, Organizational Leadership, Policy, and Development
