

Description of the Multiplier Event

The Center for Education and Innovation (InnovED) organized a Greek Multiplier Event at the Park Hotel in Volos on Monday, September 18th. The event gathered 24 passionate people who attended to learn more about our project, its goals and the extraordinary results obtained. We were delighted to welcome a broad audience, which included local educators, aspiring teachers, and students with an interest in education. We would like to express our deepest appreciation to the local and regional stakeholders who actively participated in this event and contributed to its success.

InnovED organized an interesting and successful event that was well received by our local audience. It was encouraging to see participants who were truly impressed by the project's products. We highlighted the project's practical benefits throughout the event, encouraging important conversations and open discussions. We carefully analyzed all project outputs, promoting a collaborative and learning environment. The positive response we received from our participants not only encouraged us, but also increased our faith in the project's long-term viability.

In summary, the Greek Multiplier Event was a great success, owing to the participation of local participants and their deep interest in our project's potential influence on education. We are excited to continue our path toward increasing educational innovation and excellence.
